Household Hints

Menu Hint.
BREAKFAST. Cream Blackberries, Creamed Finnan Haddie, Toast, Coffee.
LUNCHEON. Cream Sauce, Fried Tomatoes, Toast, Iced Cocoa.
DINNER. Cheese Canape, Beef in Brown Gravy, Boiled Rice, Succotash, Tomato Salad, Sliced Bananas, Coffee.

Jelly Hints.
Test for Pectin—If the pectin is less than three-fourths of the whole volume of juice, use less sugar. If the pectin is less than one-half, add some form of pectin to make the jelly, or can the juice for use as a beverage or for flavoring.

When to Add Sugar—If the sugar is added at the first there is less danger of having the sugar crystallize out. Another method is to cook the juice and add the sugar near the end of the process. Possibly the safest way is to add the sugar soon after the juice boils. Although adding the cold sugar stops the boiling for a short time, there is not enough gain in time or resulting product to take the trouble of heating the sugar. Add the sugar gradually to the boiling juice and stir until it is dissolved.

Cooking the Jelly.—The juice for jelly should not be allowed to simmer. The cooking should be finished as soon as possible. Long cooking has a tendency to give the finished product a dark color, and the pectin loses some of its jelly-making power.

Requested Recipes.
Caramel Cake.—Four tablespoons of caramel syrup, two eggs beaten together, one teaspoon soda, one cup granulated sugar, one-half cup butter and lard mixed, one full cup sweet milk, three cups of flour, three level teaspoons of baking powder.
Caramel one and one-half cups of granulated sugar until it is a golden brown in a skillet on top of the stove. Stir all the time after it gets hot so it will scorch evenly. When all is melted into a golden brown syrup pour in one cup of boiling water and when it is melted together pour out to cool. This syrup can be made a couple of days before you want to bake the cake. Beat two eggs, then add sugar and shortening and beat again; then add four spoons of the caramel syrup with the soda mixed thoroughly in it. Then stir flour and baking powder together and add to the mixture.

Plan for Card Party.

At the regular meeting of the Plattschschen Schwestern held yesterday afternoon at Math's hall, the members planned for a card party to be held September 9 at Math's hall. The card party on Sept. 9 will take the place of the September meeting, the next regular meeting to be held in October.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

The women of the country are still confident of ratification of the Nineteenth amendment. When the ratification has become history, women will celebrate the triumph of their century-long struggle for political equality within the capitol's walls. The suffragists have only once before had the building turned over to them. In contrast to the celebration now being planned, the occasion of their former meeting in the rotunda was a memorial service for the beautiful Inez Milholland Boissevain, the first suffrage martyr in this country, who died during the campaign in the west.

The jubilee will mark the victory for which Inez Milholland and numberless other women have worked and hoped. Plans for a brilliant ratification celebration have been under way ever since the 36th state seemed near a possibility. The jubilee will be under the auspices of the National Woman's party.

Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, a member of the advisory council of the woman's party and director of several spectacular pageants in Washington, D. C., heads the committee in charge. Most important of the ceremonies will be the presentation to Statuary Hall in the capitol by the Woman's party of the busts of three suffrage pioneers, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott. The busts of these three great leaders will be placed among those of men great in American history. The statues are the work of a woman, Mrs. Adelaide Johnson, the famous American sculptress. Only one other woman is now honored in the national hall of fame—Frances E. Willard.

Prominent men and women in all parts of the country will attend the jubilee and every woman's organization in the country has been asked to send representatives. Now the only thing necessary is the 36th state.

LEAVES AUGUSTANA TO WORK IN EAST

J. Frank Frysinger.

It was with much regret that tri-city music lovers learned today of the resignation of J. Frank Frysinger, the noted organist, teacher and composer, as head of the organ and theoretical departments of Augustana college Conservatory of Music. A Cyril Graham, who has been head of the organ and theoretical department at Columbia School of Music, Chicago, for the last 12 years and one of the biggest men in the country, takes the position here. Mr. Frysinger leaves his work here because of poor health to spend a year in the east, where he will devote his time to teaching and composing. Several of Mr. Frysinger's students, including some from Lincoln, Neb., his former home, are planning to spend the winter in Pennsylvania in order to continue their work with him. For the past year he had been organist and head of the choir at St. John's Methodist church, Davenport.
